'He was tortured by his failed marriages – why did he drive people away?'
JASON ISAACS

NEW FROM itvX

This charming man

Jason Isaacs plays suave Hollywood star Cary Grant in a moving biopic about his troubled life

Jason Isaacs as Cary Grant

NEW DRAMA

Archie

From Thursday 23 November, ITVX

The iconic scene from Alfred Hitchcock's 1959 film North by Northwest in which Cary Grant is chased by a crop-dusting plane is one of the most famous in movie history. And in a studio near Runcorn, it is being carefully re-created with a sharp-suited Jason Isaacs as the legendary actor…

TV&Satellite Week is on set watching filming for ITVX's four-part drama Archie, penned by Jeff Pope, which explores how the debonair Grant, born Archie Leach in Bristol in 1904, became one of Hollywood's best-loved and most charismatic stars – but struggled to find happiness along the way.

The drama sees Isaacs as an elderly Grant in 1986 looking back on his life as he undertakes a one-man show across America. The action then flashes back to his poverty-stricken upbringing in England – with three different actors playing the younger Archie – as his mother Elsie (Kara Tointon) experiences mental-health problems and his father Elias (Henry Lloyd-Hughes) rejects him.

Grant becomes a father

BENEATH THE IMAGE

'I had a notion of Cary Grant as the epitome of sophistication, cool and suaveness, and that made me not want the job because I'm not that,' says Harry Potter star Isaacs during a break in filming. 'Then I read the script and every biography and I thought, "He was a complicated, troubled, damaged and damaging human being – that I can play!" He had a traumatic childhood and struggled with shame and fear of abandonment.'

The teenage Archie eventually escaped his misery by joining a theatrical troupe that took him to New York, and he later headed to Hollywood, where he took the name Cary Grant and began a glittering career in films such as His Girl Friday, Notorious and Charade. But the drama examines how his inner demons remained.

'With acting, he walked into a world that was warm, exciting, glamorous and full of community and people who liked him. It was a home and he wanted to belong,' explains Isaacs. 'He created the persona of Cary Grant from scratch to try to succeed and also to build himself a wall of protection. But it didn't work.'

Stars Laura Aikman (Dyan Cannon) and Jason Isaacs (Cary Grant)

While the actor's traumatic past is shown resurfacing in devastating fashion, the drama also highlights Grant's romantic encounters and, in 1961, the star is seen growing captivated by young actor Dyan Cannon (Laura Aikman), who later becomes the fourth of his five wives.

'There was a hole in him that he tried to fill with various different wives,' reveals Isaacs. 'He was tortured by his failed marriages – why did he drive people away? We've tried to tell a rounded picture about how baggage and secrets can destroy you.'

To prepare for the role, Isaacs spoke to Cannon, now aged 86, whose book, Dear Cary, inspired the drama, as well as Jennifer, her daughter by Grant.

'Jennifer knows her dad, and Dyan knows the man that wooed her and with whom she had an acrimonious split, and they've both been incredibly trusting,' shares Isaacs, who worked tirelessly to capture Grant's distinctive voice.

'I'm not doing an impression, but I wanted to know how he really spoke and Jennifer generously gave me private films and audio,' says the 60-year-old, whose physical transformation was a team effort.

'It takes six hours in make-up for me to play him in his 80s and when they make me younger, my face is pinned up like human scaffolding!' he smiles. 'And it's a huge change when I wear the brown contact lenses – Cary Grant comes out when the lenses go in.'

It's clear that Isaacs has become fascinated by the star, and even though he suspects the fiercely private Grant would have been wary of a biopic being made about him, he feels he has grasped an idea of what made the icon tick.

'I've connected with him,' reflects Isaacs. 'I recognise how ludicrous this might sound, but I feel like I might understand some of the things he struggled with. I'd love to talk to him.'

CARY GRANT: A LIFE IN MOVIES

The young Archie Leach fled Bristol for America as a young man, appearing in vaudeville, until a chance meeting with comic George Burns eventually led to him cracking Hollywood.

After changing his name to Cary Grant, he went on to star in classic screwball comedies Bringing up Baby (1938, BBC iPlayer) and My Favourite Wife (1940, BBC iPlayer) before making memorable movies with director Alfred Hitchcock, including Suspicion (1941, BBC iPlayer), To Catch a Thief (1955, Sky Store) and North by Northwest (1959, Sky Store).

When his daughter Jennifer was born in 1966, he retired from acting to focus on fatherhood and he also became a successful businessman. He won an honorary Oscar in 1970 and died of a stroke in 1986 at the age of 82.

Haunted by the past

Jodie Whittaker heads Down Under for a dark Australian drama

NEW DRAMA
One Night
From Fri 24 November, Paramount+

Fresh from her critically acclaimed performance as a troubled inmate in Jimmy McGovern's prison drama Time, Jodie Whittaker is tackling another equally harrowing role in Paramount+'s tense new drama One Night.

The six-part drama sees the former Doctor Who star play Australian banker Tess, who was subjected to a sexual assault two decades ago, of which she has little memory.

Now, after years in the UK, she is returning Down Under with her wife Vicki (Kat Stewart) and their children. And back at her old coastal community, she reunites with her estranged childhood friends, budding novelist Simone (Wentworth Prison's Nicole da Silva) and lawyer Hat (Orange Is the New Black's Yael Stone), who were with her on the night she was attacked.

But when it suddenly comes to light that Simone has written a book based on Tess' assault, the friends' relationships are put to the test, while a horrified Tess tries to finally get justice for what happened to her.

Here, Whittaker, 41, gives us the low-down on the series in an exclusive interview…

Simone's novel causes a rift in the group

What drew you to One Night? I loved the way it explores female friendships. I read the first three scripts and I couldn't put them down. Emily Ballou's writing is stunning. I've been really lucky to start my post-Doctor Who life working with people like Emily and Jimmy McGovern. I don't know I'm born!

What can you reveal about your character, Tess? I was excited by the challenge and blown away that I was right for the role. If this was a British production, there is no way that I would have been seen as Tess, due to the type of roles I've done before. I got to tap into her stillness and internalisation, which I don't possess in real life. There's a stand-offishness to Tess but you soon discover why she's the way she is.

Is she worried about moving back to Australia? Yes, Tess has fought against her memory of this place, and it feels like a weakness to have these complicated friendships seep into her consciousness again. She spent some 20 years running away, and her marriage and the relationships with her children are challenged, too.

What impact does Simone's book have on Tess? A lot of dramas deal with assault, often told from the perspective of the investigation, but this is seen through the internal eye of three friends – Tess, Hat and Simone – who it dramatically affected. So the book is like dropping a grenade. For Tess, it's a betrayal and a commodification of her trauma. There are also questions about the 'ownership' of this event and whose memories are accurate.

How did you find filming in Australia? We filmed in an extraordinary town close to Sydney. On screen, Tess sees darkness and misery there, but all anyone else can see is extraordinary beauty. There's all that sea and space, but for her, it's claustrophobic. For me, though, it was amazing. I brought my family, which was the biggest adventure.

Was it tricky to do an Australian accent? It was really hard! I worked with an extraordinary dialect coach, who was at the end of a phone all the time. It won't have been perfect, but I'm giving myself an 'A' for effort!

Are you looking forward to watching David Tennant return to the TARDIS before Ncuti Gatwa takes on the role as the Doctor? Yes, I'm so excited to be a Whovian for the first time. Before I got cast, I was new to it all, because I didn't grow up in a Doctor Who household. Now, I get to watch it, understand all the references and be full of love for it. David has already proved he's amazing as the Doctor, but what a lucky thing that the universe will have Ncuti, too.

Deadly RIVALS

A gangland war rips apart a Dublin crime family

NEW DRAMA

Kin

Saturday & Tuesday, times vary, BBC1 (box set, BBC iPlayer)

A violent turf war is at the heart of this gritty BBC1 drama series, starring Peaky Blinders' Aidan Gillen and Daredevil's Charlie Cox as members of a Dublin crime family.

Cox plays Michael Kinsella, who is released from prison after eight years and is soon caught up in a conflict between his drug-dealing family and the bigger Cunningham clan, led by powerful patriarch Eamon (Ciarán Hinds).

At first, Michael's time in prison seems to have turned him away from violence and he is more concerned with getting custody of his daughter Anna.

SHIFTING DYNAMIC

'The family assumes that Michael is going to slot back in where he left off – and they are surprised that he doesn't really want to, and he might not be capable of it anyway,' reveals Cox, 40. 'That upsets the whole family dynamic. What drives the narrative is that he is not the Michael they remember.'

When a deadly incident tears the close-knit Kinsellas apart, Michael's brother Jimmy (Emmett J Scanlan) swears revenge on the Cunninghams. Will Michael stay on the straight and narrow, or will he resort to the violence of his past?

'The series was a great opportunity to play someone who's broken and damaged,' says Cox. 'I think Michael has moments where he would give anything to have chosen a different path. But it's too late. Even if he tries and makes a real effort to change, the damage has already been done.'

STRAINED RELATIONS

The situation is further complicated by Michael's close relationship with Jimmy's wife, Amanda (Clare Dunne).

Clare Dunne as Amanda

'There's a very tangled threesome going on. In the past, Michael and Amanda probably crossed the line, and that's caused a great hurt,' reveals London-born Cox, who admits he was worried about perfecting his Dublin accent.

'I was nervous from the get-go because it's a very Irish show. I'm not someone who can just do accents like that, so I spent hours listening to podcasts to get the right tone for Michael. I hope that I've done enough to convince viewers.'

NEW THRILLER

Boat Story

Sun & Mon, 9pm, BBC1 (box set, iPlayer)

Finders keepers

Paterson Joseph and Daisy Haggard team up as unlikely drug dealers in a darkly comic thriller

What would you do if you stumbled upon a stash of drugs worth a fortune on a deserted beach? That's the jumping-off point for darkly comic Yorkshire-set thriller Boat Story, starring Paterson Joseph and Daisy Haggard.

From the writers of The Tourist, The Missing and Baptiste, the six-part series follows the exploits of odd couple Janet (Haggard), who's unemployed after a gruesome accident at the factory where she worked, and Samuel (Joseph), an ex-lawyer from London with huge gambling debts, as they try to cash in on the unexpected windfall they find – along with two corpses – on a boat washed up on their local beach.

'It is about two people who are desperate, for different reasons, and find themselves with a dilemma,' explains Noughts + Crosses actor Joseph, 59. 'Do you steal a boatload of illegal drugs and step over the two dead bodies that you find, or do you call the police? They decide to take it and run!'

RISKING IT ALL

However, the pair's decision turns out to be a very dangerous one, since terrifying French mobster 'The Tailor' (Baptiste's Tchéky Karyo) and his ruthless henchman Guy (Cliffhanger's Craig Fairbrass) will stop at nothing to recover their missing cocaine shipment.

'At heart, Janet is a good person, but she's had a really tough time,' explains Breeders star Haggard, 45. 'As we start the show, she plummets to her lowest ebb, and she's placed in a situation where she makes a decision that I don't think she would have made at another point in her life. She's at rock bottom.'

For Samuel, however, embarking on this rash course of action is less out of character. 'Samuel wants to save his life and his family's existence, and he needs to get this money,' says Joseph. 'He convinces Janet to think about the possibility of taking it and running.'

But as the pair's increasingly perilous journey progresses, it's the resourceful Janet who shows her mettle in a tight spot, while the overly optimistic Samuel is more prone to making mistakes. Haggard, however, admits she's not cut from the same cloth.

'I'm definitely not made for a life of crime,' she smiles. 'When I was little, I used to confess things I'd done at home to policemen when I was walking down the street!'

TWIST IN THE TALE

The drama is described by its creators, brothers Harry and Jack Williams, as 'Tarantino in the north', while Haggard says the series is packed full of surprises, including a narrator, old-fashioned title cards to introduce its different 'chapters', and even the performance of a stage musical based on the story.

'You should expect the unexpected, and that's what excites me about it,' she says. 'It takes you on a crazy ride.'

CRIME OF FASHION

Tchéky Karyo, 70, on his well-dressed Mob boss, The Tailor...

What can you tell us about The Tailor? He's the head of a cartel and he has a passion for clothes. He has no emotion in the way he operates – it's just business.

What kind of journey does he go on? As the series progresses, you start to understand why The Tailor is the way he is – and it's not what you expect. There are many moments where you get surprised by him and there are different levels to his personality.

You've worked with writers Harry and Jack Williams on The Missing and Baptiste. What do you enjoy about their writing? I know how creative and surprising they are. You enter this story and suddenly your head is being turned in different directions and spun on its axis due to the different roads it goes down.

A new crop of famous faces head Down Under

NEW ENTERTAINMENT

I'm a Celebrity... Get Me out of Here!

Sunday-Friday, 9pm, ITV1

Get ready for more creepy-crawlies, frightened celebs and terrifying Bushtucker Trials as Ant and Dec welcome a new bunch of big names to the Australian jungle for ITV1's I'm a Celebrity… Get Me out of Here!

And according to executive producer Olly Nash, this year's show promises to be one of the best yet.

'Every year we introduce new trials and new challenges,' he says. 'Sunday's launch show will have exciting new elements that viewers will really enjoy – although I'm not so sure the celebrities will.'

As always, the names of this year's celebs are being kept under wraps, but rumoured campmates include First Dates favourite Fred Sirieix, ex-EastEnders actor Danielle Harold, Hollyoaks star Nick Pickard and This Morning host Josie Gibson. Who will become king or queen of the Jungle, a title currently held by former Lioness Jill Scott?

'At its heart, I'm a Celebrity is an entertainment reality show with great characters,' says Nash. 'It's an escape from the long winter nights. As long as the show puts a smile on your face, then we're doing our job.'

With the series running over three weeks, it's also quite an ordeal for the production team, with Nash and his team working 14-hour days. However, there are definitely some perks. While the celebs are chowing down on rice and beans, the crew is served up some top nosh.

'The food is amazing,' smiles Nash. 'The caterers make food for the movies, so if it's good enough for Tom Hanks and George Clooney, it must be good!'

CAMPMATE CROONERS

Ahead of this year's I'm a Celebrity, four former stars of the show will be donning jungle-themed costumes and belting out tunes in The Masked Singer: I'm a Celebrity Special (Sunday, 7.30pm, ITV1).

Hosted by Joel Dommett, the one-off contest will see the celebs disguised as Dunny, Wombat, Huntsman and Bearded Dragon, while Davina McCall, Jonathan Ross, Mo Gilligan and Rita Ora attempt to guess who's behind the masks. By the end, all four contestants will have been revealed.

'Wombat is an old rocker, Bearded Dragon was inspired by Dame Edna Everage, and Huntsman is borderline scary,' says the show's character designer Tim Simpson. 'And I'm really pleased somebody was prepared to dress as a toilet for Dunny!'

Cathy comes home

Raise a glass! Love cheat Cathy is back in Latimer Crescent...

NEW COMEDY

Two Doors Down

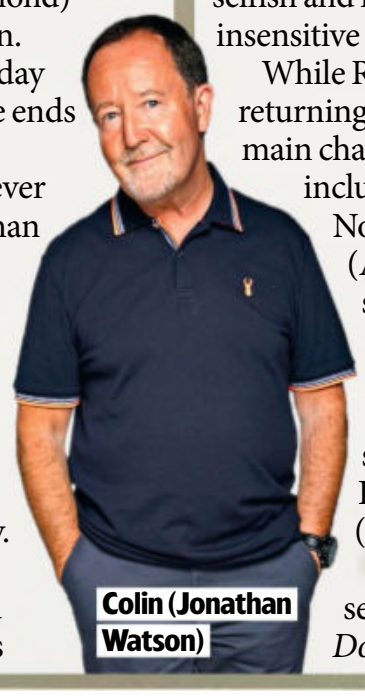
Friday, 9.30pm, BBC1 (box set, BBC iPlayer)

If good fences make good neighbours, the residents of Latimer Crescent could be forgiven for installing razor wire and security cameras when a familiar face pops up in the new series of Two Doors Down.

Doon Mackichan's deliciously egotistical character, Cathy, makes a brazen return this week after dumping husband Colin for a new lover in Egypt last year.

In the opening episode of the new six-part series, Cathy's determined to pick up where she left off, and her timing couldn't be more devastating. The residents of the Glasgow suburb are planning a birthday surprise for Colin's girlfriend Anne-Marie (Siobhan Redmond) when Cathy waltzes in.

'The surprise birthday party for Anne-Marie ends up more of a surprise than anybody could ever believe,' laughs Jonathan Watson, who plays Colin. 'I was absolutely delighted to hear that Doon was returning. As soon as we started filming, it was as if she'd never been away. I think viewers will want to see Colin and Cathy together – she's selfish and manipulative and he's insensitive in an innocent way.'



Colin (Jonathan Watson)

While Redmond is not returning as Anne-Marie, the main characters are back, including Eric (Alex Norton), his wife Beth (Arabella Weir), their son Ian (Jamie Quinn) and his fiancé Gordon (Kieran Hodgson), who is set to be ruffled by Ian's ex, Darren (Mark Prendergast).

Now in its seventh series, Two Doors Down is moving from BBC2 to BBC1, although the show's future is uncertain after the sad passing of co-writer Simon Carlyle in August.

'We're all chuffed it's gone to BBC1; it's a sign of the faith BBC has in it,' says Watson. 'We don't know if there will be another series, but I know that Simon wanted to do more. It may be a lovely legacy if we continue, but we'll have to see.'

A mother and her daughters grapple with life in a new comedy

NEW COMEDY

Such Brave Girls

Wednesday, 10pm & 10.25pm, BBC3 (box set, BBC iPlayer)

Trauma and depression may not be the usual fare of comedy shows but they are at the heart of BBC3's new sitcom Such Brave Girls, inspired by its creator Kat Sadler's experiences.

The six-part series centres on a dysfunctional family made up of Josie (Sadler), her sister Billie, played by Sadler's real-life sister Lizzie Davidson, and their single mother Deb (Sherlock's Louise Brealey), with the girls' father having walked out on the family years ago.

Josie is brutally honest about suffering from depression and having been sectioned, while the overdramatic Billie goes to ridiculous lengths to win back her ex-boyfriend, who uses her for sex.

QUICK FIX?

Mum Deb, who believes most mental-health issues can be cured by a shopping spree, is desperate to get out of the huge debt the family's in and sees her chance in her new boyfriend, comfortably off Dev (Benidorm star Paul Bazely).

'Ultimately the show is a family sitcom about trauma, but it's more about the characters being narcissistic losers who are pathetically obsessed with what people think about them,' explains Sadler.

The idea for the series came out of a conversation she had with her sister back in 2020.

'I told Lizzie for the first time that I had been sectioned and Lizzie told me that she was in £20K worth of debt – and I thought that's good material for a show!' she says.

Director Simon Bird, who knows a thing or two about comedy having starred in The Inbetweeners and Friday Night Dinner, immediately saw the series' potential.

'From reading the pilot script, I knew that this was voice-of-a-generation territory,' he explains. 'We wanted to destigmatise things like mental health and trauma by taking some of the heaviness and weight out of them by making them fodder for silly jokes, and Kat is an unbelievable joke writer.'

Healing a hardman

How a West Sussex farm is helping ex-footballer and actor Vinnie Jones cope with a devastating loss

Vinnie Jones in the Country

NEW Available: Monday 20 November
Genre: Reality Season: 1 Eps: 6
(first two eps from 20 Nov, then weekly)

He's best known as the football hardman who reinvented himself as a Hollywood actor specialising in tough-guy roles. So it might come as some surprise to learn that Vinnie Jones is at his happiest birdwatching, looking for hedgehogs and pottering about on his West Sussex farm.

This new reality series follows Jones as, with the help of a new 'crazy gang' comprising builder 'Wobbly' and personal assistant Emma, he refurbishes outbuildings on his 2,000-acre estate and indulges his love of living in the countryside.

'When you're so much in the public eye, to come here is wonderful,' explains Jones, who won the FA Cup with Wimbledon in 1988. 'In this place, money, cars and how big your house is – none of it matters!'

Always on the lookout for new projects and distractions, Jones is keen to establish whether there are hedgehogs living on his land, and sets about leaving out food and setting up cameras to capture any hedgehog action.

'The hedgehog is nature's underdog in Great Britain right now,' he says, adding that he feels an affinity with the prickly characters. 'When I played football, I was always the underdog, playing for Wimbledon and teams like that. Well, now I'm sticking up for the underdog!'

Jones reveals that he has his own reasons for being constantly occupied.

'Keeping busy is central to my life in the country,' says the 58-year-old, who also played for Leeds United, Chelsea and Wales, and got his acting breakthrough role in Guy Ritchie's Lock, Stock & Two Smoking Barrels. 'This is how I cope with a much longer journey.'

SEEKING SANCTUARY

That journey is dealing with the loss of Tanya, his wife of 25 years, who tragically died in July 2019, aged 53, after a long battle with cancer.

'It was four years ago that Tanya passed away,' says Jones, who has found his own way to avoid being overcome by grief. 'When that grief tries to come and throw itself on me, I will go: "No, ain't happening!" And instead, I will think of some good times that we had.'

While he cherishes his memories of Tanya, who he knew since childhood, Jones is intent on making the most of his life without her.

'I hate the phrase "moving on" but we've got to enjoy this part of life,' he says. 'A lot of people have got their [traumatic] past, but are you going to let your past weigh you down for the rest of your life? You have got to move on from that. This is why the building work at the farm is so important. Staying busy is my therapy.'

Part of the project includes building a memorial to Tanya in the grounds.

'I want it to be a beautiful bird bath. All the spirits and the birds can come here – the fountain of life,' explains Jones. 'It can be a beautiful quiet spot for people to remember Tanya and keep her legacy going.'

Helena Bonham Carter stars in new spin on a classic children's tale

tv+ The Velveteen Rabbit

NEW Available: Wednesday 22 November
Genre: Drama

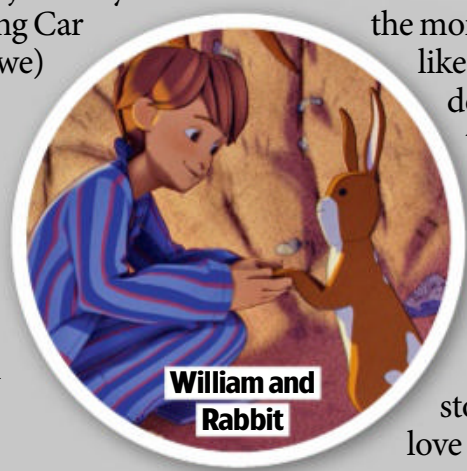
The enchanting tale of a young boy and his beloved toy rabbit hops on to Apple TV+ this week in a sweet film that features The Crown's Helena Bonham Carter, Andor's Alex Lawther and Bridgerton's Nicola Coughlan among its voice cast.

Adapted from Margery Williams' treasured 1922 children's book, the film follows lonely seven-year-old William (Phoenix Laroche), who longs for a best friend when his parents (Samantha Colley and Leonard Buckley) move house.

William's wish is granted when he discovers a beautiful velveteen rabbit (Lawther) in his stocking on Christmas Day. But the floppy-eared new addition to the playroom is rejected by the other, more modern toys, including Car (Lois Chimimba), Lion (Clive Rowe) and King (Paterson Joseph).

As Rabbit grows older and shabbier, kind-natured Wise Horse (Bonham Carter) tries to bolster the bunny, telling him that toys can become real through their owners' love. Does William really love him? If so, can the Playroom Fairy (Coughlan) make his dreams come true?

'My dad used to read The Velveteen Rabbit to me,' says Bonham Carter, 57. 'The story's message is that toys can come alive when they're loved. That happens to humans, too.



William and Rabbit

'There's a passage when the rabbit asks the horse if love hurts, and the horse explains that the more a child loves you, the more bits like eyes and ears will fall off, but it doesn't matter because you are truly loved. I wish we saw the ageing process in humans the same way.'

Magic Light Pictures worked with writer Tom Bidwell to blend live action with animation. 'The Velveteen Rabbit tells a story about important themes like love and loss, yet it does so with imagination and joy,' says Bidwell. 'I love the fact that it's set at Christmas. It's almost like the audience is pulled inside the picture on a Christmas card into a world of magic and wonder.'

GAMES for all the family!

We've got Christmas wrapped up

What would the festive season be without playing lots of games with your family? It's a great way to spend quality time together when the weather outside is less than inviting. We all love the old favourites – charades, board games and cards – but this year, try something fresh and exciting to get the party started!

PERFECT FOR GIFTING

Two new video games from Sega are guaranteed to keep your whole family entertained. The first is the latest action-packed video game featuring classic character Sonic the Hedgehog, Sonic Superstars. Adults will love the 1990s nostalgia while children are sure to enjoy the super-speed racing. Even better, it makes an ideal gift under the Christmas tree for both kids and big kids.

SHAKE IT UP

For activity of a different kind, the latest addition to the Samba de Amigo series for Nintendo Switch is here to spice up your festive celebrations. Samba de Amigo: Party Central has a playlist of 40 pop hits that'll get the whole family strutting their stuff – perfect for those who love to sing and dance. Plus, there are mini-games and challenges, unique costumes and accessories to unlock so everyone can customise their own character, and an online eight-player World Party mode where you can hit the dance floor, and show everyone your moves.

SPEEDY SQUAD

Sonic the Hedgehog is back with a bang. Sonic Superstars features a brand-new storyline and four of the series' much-loved characters – Sonic, Knuckles, Tails and Amy Rose – so everyone can play at the same time without having to watch from the sidelines.

The story takes place on the mystical Northstar Islands, filled with giant animals, and perfect for having thrilling adventures. Sonic and his friends take on arch-nemesis Dr. Eggman and old antagonist Fang as a team to save the animals from being turned into Badniks, all while whizzing by at exhilarating speed. It's not just racing along, though. Players can also use the power of seven Chaos Emeralds to unlock different abilities to battle Sonic's enemies, including multiplying, swimming up waterfalls, changing form, and more. There are special stages and new levels, too, so the fast, festive fun never stops!

Both games are out now and available to order. Find out more at sonicsuperstars.com and sambadeamigo.sega.com

David Holmes: The Boy Who Lived

Saturday, 9pm, Sky Documentaries & Sky Showcase

The Harry Potter franchise is one of the most famous in film history, but there's one behind-the-scenes story from the wizarding world that's never been told until now.

This documentary shares the journey of Daniel Radcliffe's former stunt double and best friend, David Holmes, who broke his neck when a stunt went wrong during the making of one of the Potter movies.

'This is the story that matters the most to me from Harry Potter,' says Radcliffe, who executive produced the film. 'It's crazy how much David did for me.'

Holmes was a promising teenage gymnast before he was hand-picked to be Radcliffe's stand-in, and the pair became best friends during the decade they spent working together on the eight Potter movies.

However, in January 2009, during rehearsals for a scene in Harry Potter and the Deathly Hallows: Part 1, Holmes suffered a terrible injury that left him paralysed from the chest down.

Holmes was a talented teenage gymnast

'I hit the wall and landed on the crash mat underneath,' explains Holmes, now 42. 'My stunt coordinator grabbed my hand and told me to squeeze his fingers. I could move my arm to grab his hand, but I couldn't squeeze his fingers. That's when I realised what happened was major.'

EMOTIONAL JOURNEY

Featuring archive footage, the documentary charts Holmes' early life and his days working on the movies to how his life has changed in the years since his injury.

'Back in 2009, there was a young audience that was very invested in the Harry Potter story,' says Holmes. 'I knew it was a beautiful thing for a lot of people, and my story isn't the most positive thing to be associated with it. But now I think that audience has grown up and is discovering it again with their kids, so it felt like the right time to share my journey.'

It's a story that affected everyone working on the films, but none more than his best pals Radcliffe and Marc Mailley, a fellow stuntman who reluctantly stepped in to replace Holmes after his injury.

'The stunt world is hyper-masculine,' says Holmes. 'But to see men like Daniel and Marc sharing their emotions on screen in this documentary is really important. I hope the film shows that it's OK to be vulnerable around your loved ones.'

Since the accident, Holmes has had several operations, with only his left arm still working – but he remains determined to live life to the full.

'It's a mild inconvenience,' he laughs. 'I'm still alive, and I want to get a lot done in whatever time and whatever function I can. I'm not ready to roll over just yet.'

NEW FACTUAL

The Toy Hospital

Friday, 8pm, Channel 5

From mangled puppets and threadbare teddies to broken BMX bikes and a damaged TARDIS, a team of restoration specialists give an array of much-loved toys a fresh lease of life in a new Repair Shop-style series.

Among the professionals treating the treasured items in the six-part series are toy 'doctors' Charlotte Abbott, Jax Smith and Shaun Lati. Meanwhile, former NHS worker and 2014 Great British Bake Off winner Nancy Birtwhistle is acting as 'matron', welcoming people to the wards with their beloved items.

ON THE MEND

One of the first patients is a precious panda called Teddy, brought in by Norma, a retired teacher from Clacton-on-Sea.

'My son Alan was given Teddy 42 years ago as a birthday present when he was two,' she explains. 'He slept with him every night and was never parted from him.'

Tragically, when Alan was 16, he suffered a stroke.

'He died in hospital with Teddy in his arms,' says Norma. 'Alan was my only child, and I've looked after Teddy ever since, but he is now very threadbare, and his neck is broken.'

Other cherished toys coming in for treatment include an iconic 1960s Pelham Puppet brought in by grandfather Tim from Carmarthenshire. Founded by Bob Pelham in 1947, Pelham Puppets were marionettes made for children, and became hugely popular.

'I was given my puppet giant when I was about five years old,' says Tim. 'I remember playing with him and weaving many stories around his character. My granddaughter Lizzie found him recently and wanted to play with him, but these days, he looks like roadkill. His strings are broken, his head has come off, and he needs a proper fix.'

Marc's TARDIS and Doctor figure

OUT OF ORDER

Also in the first episode is a 1970s vintage Doctor Who TARDIS toy – featuring a figure of the Tom Baker incarnation of the Time Lord – which the repair gang quickly gets to work on.

'I played with it every day when I was younger,' says owner Marc, a Doctor Who fan from Ayrshire. 'You put the Doctor inside the TARDIS, press a button and then he would disappear. If the experts can fix it, it will be the first time I've seen it working in 40 years.'

Mafia Mamma

Regular housewife Toni Collette unwillingly takes over the family 'business'...

ACTION COMEDY

On all week, on demand, Prime Video ★★★

Toni Collette's timid American mom goes to Italy for her estranged grandfather's funeral and is stunned to discover that she has inherited the family business – not winemaking, as she had supposed, but a blood-soaked mafia empire. Even more disconcertingly, the clan is in the middle of a gory mob war.

Helmed, surprisingly, by Twilight director Catherine Hardwick, this knockabout crime comedy veers back and forth between silly and stupid yet picks up enough farcical momentum to sweep willing viewers along. Not all the jokes hit the target, but Collette is splendid and shares marvellous chemistry with Monica Bellucci, who plays the family's glamorous consigliere.

Indeed, it is Bellucci's cool and collected Bianca who guides Collette's flustered Kristen through the perilous intricacies of her new position as the head of the Balbano crime family. Not that Kristen wants the job. For her, the trip to Italy was a chance to fulfil her Eat, Pray, Love-inspired dreams, having just discovered her useless husband (Tim Daish) in flagrante with a younger woman. Love definitely appears in the offing when she encounters the handsome Lorenzo (Giulio Corso) on her arrival at the airport in Rome.

But it isn't long before she's debating romantic possibilities while dodging assassination attempts instigated by a rival clan. Yes, it is all rather ludicrous, but great fun if it catches you in the right mood. Streaming from Friday 17 November. 2023, 15, 101 MIN

Riders of Justice

Wednesday, 9pm, Film4 ★★★★

When probability professor Otto (Nikolaj Lie Kaas) survives a train crash that kills a high-profile snitch, he is convinced it can't have been an accident because 'the numbers never lie'. Together with soldier Markus (Mads Mikkelsen), whose wife died in the wreckage, and nerds Lennart (Lars Brygmann) and Emmenthaler (Nicolas Bro), he forms an unlikely foursome who go after the biker gang they believe is responsible. What follows plays like Taken, if it featured odd bods instead of Liam Neeson. Between outbursts of violence and remorse, this Danish film explores our need to make sense of tragedy by imposing patterns on the universe's random cruelties. It may sound heavy, but with great characters, big laughs and lots of twists, it's a darkly witty delight. Subtitled. 2021, 15, 116MIN

After blacking out when a man seemingly abducts her, Lisa (a superb Gaia Weiss) wakes up in a small metal chamber, with a large wristband that doubles as a light, and now dressed in a practical, protective leotard. A small hole opens and a passageway is revealed... What proceeds is a tense, taut, lean French movie in which Lisa must navigate deadly, terrifying ordeals to find an escape, travelling down what seem impossibly claustrophobic crawlspaces. This is no Saw-style torture movie, though (even if there are some genuinely gnarly moments) – we care and root for Lisa every step of the way, in a film that opens up to be a far more emotional and thought-provoking experience than it may initially appear. Violent Night

Friday, 8pm, Sky Premiere ★★★

This derivative but entertaining comedy sees a hostile takeover of a rich family's mansion by John Leguizamo's thief Scrooge thwarted not only by a hammer-wielding Santa (David Harbour), but also by booby traps laid by its youngest member (Leah Brady). Harbour lends an amusing world-weariness to his homicidal gift-giver and the film lives up to its title with inventive deaths using the likes of an ice-skate, a wood-chipper and a Christmas tree decoration – yes, it's Die Hard meets Home Alone. The clan is rather one dimensional, but there's still bloody fun to had. 2022, 15, 107MIN

But when the psychotic Cuco (Beau Knapp) kidnaps Doc's teenage daughter, his skills afforded him by being ex-Special Forces come in very handy as he mows down anyone in his way. This thoroughly routine thriller retreads elements from far better films, but at least director John Swab does a reasonable job in the action sequences and Grillo is as watchable as ever. It's just a shame – he deserves better. 2023, 15, 105MIN

A-listers including David Beckham and Shaquille O'Neal will be out in force for the glamorous event that Red Bull boss Christian Horner predicts will be 'an amazing spectacle with a fun vibe'. Here's what to expect...

THE HISTORY

It's more than 40 years since Las Vegas staged two Formula One races, in 1981 and 1982, when the Nevada city hosted the Caesars Palace Grand Prix, featuring a circuit built entirely in the car park of the famous hotel and casino. Alan Jones was winner of the 1981 race, while Michele Alboreto took the chequered flag a year later before the F1 race was scrapped due to high costs and small crowds.

THE RACE

The Grand Prix will take place on a brand-new street circuit downtown, including a stretch of track along the world-famous Strip, passing famous hotels like the Bellagio and the Venetian plus Vegas' newest landmark – the giant Sphere, wrapped in 1.2 million LED lights.

It will be a night race, allowing the city to show off its glittering skyline and deliver a stunning visual spectacle. It will also be the first F1 race since 1985 to take place on a Saturday night, local time, which means a 6am start on Sunday morning for viewers in the UK.

At 6.2km, the track is F1's third longest circuit after Spa and Jeddah, and with 17 mostly flowing corners, it is also set to be one of its fastest.

THE MAIN EVENT

Will Max Verstappen hit the jackpot as Formula One comes to the Vegas Strip?

THE CONTENDERS

Max Verstappen has the title in the bag already, but having set a new record for wins in a single F1 season, the Red Bull driver will be eager to extend that record further. Elsewhere, his teammate Sergio Pérez will continue to battle it out for second place with Sir Lewis Hamilton, Mercedes' seven-time champion. 'I've been to Vegas a couple of times in my lifetime, and it's crazy to think we have a Grand Prix coming here,' says Hamilton. 'I think the race will be incredible.'

Euro 2024 qualifiers

Saturday & Tuesday, S4C, BBC iPlayer & Viaplay Sports 1

Wales will look to secure a place alongside England and Scotland in next year's finals as the qualifiers for Euro 2024 conclude this week. A 2-1 win over Croatia last month – thanks to a brace from Harry Wilson – has reignited Welsh hopes, and Rob Page's side can secure an automatic berth in Germany at Croatia's expense if they beat Armenia on Saturday (kick-off 2pm) and Turkey in Cardiff on Tuesday (7.45pm). 'We are in a transition period where we've lost one of the best players in the world [Gareth Bale] but we are two games away from qualifying for another major tournament,' says Page. 'And we believe we can do it.'

European Tour

From Wednesday, Sky Sports Golf & Sky Sports Main Event

Following the drama of the Ryder Cup in Italy last month, the new European Tour season gets under way with a double-header of tournaments in the southern hemisphere. England's Dan Bradbury will be teeing off at the Houghton Golf Club in Johannesburg in defence of his Joburg Open crown (from 10am, Thu), while home favourite Cameron Smith defends his title in the Australian PGA Championship in Brisbane (from 2.30am, Wed night).

Davis Cup

From Thursday, BBC iPlayer

Malaga in Spain hosts the knockout stage of the Davis Cup this week, with Great Britain taking on Novak Djokovic's Serbia in the quarter-finals on Thursday. The British team is without the injured Dan Evans, but Cameron Norrie, Sir Andy Murray, Jack Draper and Neal Skupski will be aiming to set up a semi-final against the Netherlands or Italy, with the final taking place on Sunday 26 November. Canada defeated Australia in last year's showpiece, becoming world champions for the first time. Each match will be the best of three rubbers – two singles and a doubles.

Sunday, play starts 8.30am, Sky Sports Cricket, Sky Sports Main Event & Sky Sports Mix

After England's miserable campaign in defence of their title, new 50-over world champions will be crowned in Ahmedabad on Sunday. As we went to press, hosts India and South Africa were among the in-form sides in the running to lift the trophy, which England memorably claimed in 2019 by defeating New Zealand after a nail-biting Super Over.

KIDS WATCHLIST

Great shows for young viewers (from tots to teens) on linear TV and streaming

NEW

NETFLIX Leo

From Tuesday, Netflix

Leo the lizard and his tankmate, Squirtle the turtle – quite possibly one of the best character names ever – live in a Florida elementary school, where they have been class pets for decades.

When Leo (voiced by Adam Sandler) learns that he may not have much longer to live, he decides to break free – and so begins a coming-of-age story with a difference as Leo turns therapist, helping his anxious students grab life by the horns and overcome their problems.

A charming and heart-warming film, with a good dose of laughs to boot.

tv+ A Charlie Brown Thanksgiving

Stream for free on Sat & Sun, Apple TV+

Fifty years on from the release of this Peanuts classic, non-subscribers to Apple TV+ are able to stream the feature for free on Saturday and Sunday.

Peppermint Patty invites all the gang to Charlie Brown's for Thanksgiving – even though Charlie and Sally are going to visit their grandmother; and Snoopy and Woodstock share their own Thanksgiving feast.

More great shows to watch this week...

STAND UNIQU3's Road to Nice

NEW

Friday, 5.30pm, CBBC

Ahead of next week's Junior Eurovision Contest comes this documentary following the girl group and their journey to the competition.

I Can Do It, You Can Too

NEW

Weekdays, 5pm, CBeebies

Children pass on their skills to young beginners, from riding a bike to catching a ball, with everyone learning the fun of picking up something new.

The Velveteen Rabbit

NEW

From Wed, Apple TV+

A charming adaptation of the classic children's story about a young boy and the toy rabbit he receives on Christmas Day.

Men UP

Iwan Rheon heads the cast of a drama about the creation of Viagra

BBC1's moving but wryly funny drama Men Up is inspired by the true story of one of the first medical trials into Viagra.

Penned by Matthew Barry, the one-off upcoming film follows a group of very different men who head to Swansea's Morriston Hospital in 1994 to be part of the testing into a new revolutionary drug, which they hope can cure their impotency.

The volunteers, who are all struggling with embarrassment and self-doubt as they try to hide the truth about their condition, include hospital porter Meurig (Game of Thrones star Iwan Rheon), who is desperate to revive his sex life with wife Ffion (Sanditon's Alexandra Roach).

PERSONAL STORIES

Meanwhile, widower Colin (Steffan Rhodri) is worried about becoming intimate with potential new love Teresa (Lisa Palfrey), gay Tommy (Paul Rhys) is attempting to keep his sexuality secret so that he can to be part of the trial, Peetham (Phaldut Sharma) hopes to rekindle his romance with wife Alys (Alexandria Riley), and tough-talking Eddie (Mark Lewis Jones) is also keen to please his other half.

But will Dr Dylan Pearce (Aneurin Barnard) and clinical nurse Moira Davies (Joanna Page), who are running the trial, be able to help the men turn their lives around?

'Who knew that one of the first Viagra trials in the world took place in 1994… in Swansea?!' says Barry. 'I'm beyond delighted to bring this extraordinary tale to the screen. People hear the word impotence, and they wait for the punchline. But this story is about so much more.'

Stars Mark Lewis Jones, Paul Rhys, Steffan Rhodri, Iwan Rheon and Phaldut Sharma

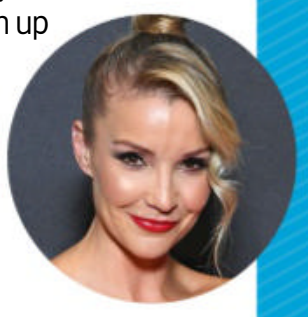
WHAT'S NEXT FOR...

Bradley Walsh

The actor and presenter will host Channel 5's three-parter Bradley Walsh: Legends of Comedy, in which he celebrates his favourite comics, such as Victoria Wood, and revisits sitcoms from Dad's Army to Blackadder.

Helen Skelton

BBC1's Lost and Found in the Lakes, airing next year, sees the presenter team up with divers and detectorists to try to locate much-loved possessions mislaid by the public in the Lake District.



Naomie Harris

In Sky Cinema's film Robin and the Hood, the actor will play a ruthless developer who has plans for a patch of land, but clashes with a young girl (Darcey Ewart) and her friends, who use the area as a playground.

Idris Elba

The actor will narrate and executive produce National Geographic's The Color of Victory: Heroes of WW2, in which he will take an in-depth look at the role people of colour played in World War Two.
